NICK HENDERSON

Nick Henderson lives in the heart of Upperton and is a volunteer at the Elim Family Church.

Nick is passionate about helping local people with their many issues and making Upperton the best place to live and work. He values protecting the environment and keeping our parks and open spaces clean and crime free.

He also wants to improve the street scene, monitoring and reporting uneven pavements, potholes etc.

ANNE ANGEL

Anne is a former borough councillor and past President of Eastbourne Chamber of Commerce and Town Centre Manager.

She founded and chaired Historic Old Town, working with businesses in Upperton's Crown Street to organise Christmas events.

As part of the team that started Airbourne, she is keen that seafront attractions such as the Bandstand and Redoubt are maintained and open for visitors and residents.

Anne has a particular interest in seeing local government is run efficiently in these challenging times.

MOZMIL HUSSAIN

Mozmil manages a popular local Indian Restaurant which regularly fund-raises for Friends of Eastbourne Hospital (to help them buy new equipment) St Wilfrid's Hospice and the foodbank.

He says that support from the Conservative government during the pandemic saved his business and many others he knows.

Before coming to Eastbourne, Mozmil worked for the community on youth issues in London and now leads a campaign across East Sussex to organise events to help celebrate human rights and multi-cultural issues.

Mozmil has worked for the foodbank and is also very concerned about climate change and supports the current tree planting.

Lib-Dem town's shambles

The Lib-Dem's sad mismanagement of our town's heritage assets means that the Bandstand will be silent this summer, and Upperton Conservatives share your concerns about this dismal failure.

The town relies on tourism, and many visitors love to sit and enjoy the music. Without our bandstand there's a risk that people won't want to visit and we will see tourism income plummet.

In addition, the Borough council has a duty and responsibility to ensure heritage assets are protected for generations to come, and the lack of maintenance and repairs, which has been ongoing for many years, neglects that duty.
